

Brown University Adjunct Lecturer in Special Education
Fall 2020 Semester

Job Description:

The adjunct lecturer will:

- co-teach a ½ credit course with a Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT) Faculty Member
  - Course is scheduled to meet 7 times in the semester every other Wednesday from 3-5:30pm (planned for in-person, but may be shifted to online)
- Prepare presentations and provide lectures related to the special education objectives for MAT students.
  - explore the various categories of human exceptionality keeping in mind that variation exists at the individual level;
  - review the main laws and policies that inform your work with exceptional students;
  - study Individualized Education Programs and 504 plans and their implications for instruction;
  - study the Universal Design for Learning (UDL) framework for differentiation
  - discuss different models for collaborations with school professionals and parents; and
  - access research and resources that support your work with these students.
- Assess student understanding of course objectives through examination of lesson plans, projects, presentations, and other course assignments.
- Create two in-person or online workshops/modules that prepare secondary general education teachers to work effectively with special education students in their classrooms.
- Collaborate in a deep and meaningful way outside of class with the co-instructor of the course to create the lessons for the course

Requirements:

Degree in Special Education

Current Rhode Island Certificate in Special Education

At least 5 years of special education teaching experience working in a K-12 school

Ability to work effectively in the online learning setting

Compensation:

$5000

To Apply:

Please send a letter of interest and a resume/CV to Diane Silva Pimentel (diane_silva_pimentel@brown.edu), Director of the Teacher Education Program by June 30th, 2020.